ONLY STATUE OF DICKENS.

West Philadelphia holds the only statue of Charles Dickens in the world, says the Philadelphia Press.
Hardly ever passing glances given by hurrying pedestrians to this monument of bronze and granite, depicting the great writer seated and looking lovingly down upon the upturned head of "Little Nell," the child of his brain. The monument is a bronze group by E. Edwin Elwell, the famous sculptor, and was purchased several years ago by the city branch of the Fairmount Park Art association. It had been intended to grace the great Central Free Library building that is now planned as one of the buildings along the Parkway. While it was lying unused Clark park was opened and the statue was mounted there.

Cost Him a Customer.

A woman went into a store in Eagle Rock, a suburb of Los Angeles, and bought ten cents worth of candy. The clerk put the candy carefully into a bag and instead of handing it to her first he held out his hand for the money. The woman paid for the purchase and as she walked out the door with a friend was heard to say: "I guess that clerk thought I was going to grab that candy and run."

This seems but a small thing but it was enough to make this woman decide to change and do business with another store.—

Consistent Liar.

The poor editor was dying; but when the doctor placed his ear to the patient's heart and muttered sadly, "poor fellow, circulation almost gone," the editor raised himself and gasped: "'Tis false, we have the largest circulation of any paper in the county!" then sank back upon his pillow with a smile upon his face: He was consistent to the end, dying, lying about his circulation.—Mayo Free Press.

It seems as if the Mexicans were determined to keep cutting up capers until Uncle Sam has to go down there and take a few of them over his knee and administer a spanking. And when your Uncle Samuel goes there will be tall jumping around getting to the open country where the running will be easy.
